What are Individual Directed Goods and Services?

The Palmetto Coordinated System of Care (PCSC) waiver is a special program for South Carolina residents aged 21 or younger with significant behavioral health needs. One of the services offered by the program is Individual Directed Goods and Services (IDGS). Below is information on IDGS, its eligibility requirements, and what IDGS can provide to a participant.

Definition

IDGS are goods, equipment or supplies that are not otherwise provided through the PCSC waiver or through the Medicaid State Plan.

Who is Eligible to Receive IDGS?

To be eligible to receive IDGS, a participant must first be found eligible for the PCSC waiver. If selected, the participant/family must agree to follow all policies and communicate with waiver staff.

All requests for IDGS must:

- Meet an identified need on the service plan
- Decrease the need for other Medicaid services
- Support inclusion in the community
- Increase participant safety in the home environment
- Not be available through another source

What is Self-Direction?

Self-direction is a service delivery option only available to PCSC participants receiving the IDGS waiver service. This option gives the participant/family the opportunity to decide how needs will be met. Wraparound Facilitators (WF) explain the benefits and responsibilities of self-direction. The participant/family can exercise this option during the initial service plan development or as the need arises during waiver enrollment.

Benefits of Self-Direction

Choosing the self-direction service delivery option allows the PCSC waiver participant/family to:

- Make budget decisions
- Participate in overall decision making
- Exercise choice and control of purchases
- Select goods and equipment based on choice
- Choose vendors based on preference, when available
